Here's a Whopper of a Fish Story Right Hot Off the Reel by Local Disciples of Walton

"Billie" Watters demonstrated nimself the champion fisherman of Nevada last Friday. In company with E. J. Erickson, secretary-treasurer of the Tonopah Divide Mining company, the efficient superintendent of that company, stopped off at Hawthorne upon their return from Carson City, where they were met by Senator John H. Miller, Alva Miller and Mr. Buckingham. They were immediately. whisked away to Walker Lake where they put in two days angling for speckled beauties and bass, all making use of the electric launch and row boats with the exception of "Billie" Wat ters, who decided on riding horseback. Here is the way Mr. Erickson.

tells of the happenings to his old cronie "Billie." "Mr. Watters picked up a mongrel, and tied a rope to his neck; leading nim along the shores of the take. Looking around suddenly he discovered that the dog was not in evidence, but he noticed that the lariat had tightened perceptibly. Suddenly there was a strong pull and the horse set himself for a trying ordeal. Setting back on his haunches the horse put up a gallant fight but the rope snapped. It was then that 'Billie' resorted to the use of a row boat, and the way he hit the waves was something terrific. He could see a portion of the rope traversing the poor little doggie opened his eyes and licked the hand of his rescuer. 'Billie' left the animal in charge of Senator Miller and on his next trip to Walker Lake or Hawthorne, will bring his dumb friend to Tonopah. Some say that 'Billie' caught the mys terious sea serpent that has so much uneasiness caused among the residents of Walker Lake. That fish was surely a whopper, but if you want to learn its real size, just ask Billie' Walters. Both Mr. Erickson and Mr. Watters say they were royally entertained by the Miller broth-waters, and followed swiftly.

Having provided himself with a grab hook he finally caught the
